FABRICATOR VALUE PROPOSITION

NASH is the only Australian industry association supporting the cold formed light gauge steel industry in the low rise residential and commercial building markets.

NASH has a strong network of members across Australia from various areas of the industry. NASH provides value to its fabricator members in the following ways:

- Provides a forum to enable you to influence the future direction of the steel framing industry.
- Provides regular updates of industry issues and developments via NASH News, the website and social media.
- Provides the opportunity for you to network with other members at local chapter meetings and national workshops.
- Enables you to link your website to the NASH website to increase your leads and brand awareness.
- Provides business referrals which come to NASH via their website, social media and phone.
- The association lobbies on behalf of the industry on issues that affect or have potential to affect the industry. Eg Working at heights, building regulations, standard and training.
- The association promotes the industry whenever possible hopefully leading to more business opportunities for members. Eg Industry events such as HIA expos.
- NASH provides technical and industry advice to members.
- NASH develops technical standards, handbooks, and fact sheets to assist with the education of the wider industry.
- Provides discounts to NASH members for NASH publications, NASH workshops and seminars.
- NASH gets involved in research projects to further develop the benefits of steel framing to support the industry.
- Enables you to use the NASH logo in your business to further enhance your business credentials to the wider market.
