

CODE OF ETHICS

The National Association of Steel-Framed Housing Inc (NASH) is a non-profit industry association established for the main purpose of promoting the development of the steel framing manufacturing industry in Australia.

NASH members agree to observe sound ethical and commercial practices and to maintain an exemplary standard of business conduct including:

1. Abide by the Constitution and Bylaws at all times
2. Maintain the confidentiality of Association business where required
3. Comply with all relevant laws, regulations, codes and standards
4. Work with other members to advance the capabilities and interests of the industry
5. Fairly and accurately represent products and services at all times
6. Conduct business to reflect favourably on the Association and reinforce public confidence
7. Be courteous, helpful, honest and reliable in dealings with enquirers, customers and suppliers
8. Use and promote safe manufacturing and construction practices
9. Operate at all times within technical and business competence
10. Carry appropriate business insurance cover

The National Council adopted this Code of Ethics on 13th May 2008